

Counselling and Guidance in Schools (Basic)

Advent Links-SAUC Education Centre

We are committed to provide quality education programmes in children & family studies.

In today's hectic and stressful society, it is pertinent to understand the messages we are relating to our children/students and also to understand the needed support we can render to our children/students. Taking into consideration the social and emotional development in young children, the parent and teacher needs to understand such areas as understanding why children behave the way they do and how to use the guidance approach to succeed in teaching acceptable social behaviors. The parent and teacher would also need to know the skills and techniques to emotionally assist the children to process their thoughts and feelings and to help the children understand themselves.

The course discusses the differences between such vital concepts as patience and understanding and between misbehavior and mistaken behavior. These concepts provide insight into the importance of developing an encouraging adult-child relationship and how that leads to non-punitive strategies for managing the optimal intellectual, social and emotional growth of our children. The methodology will be experiential whereby participants will enjoy hands-on opportunities to practise the theories learned via discussions, exercises and role plays.
